1.2 Communication protocols Clarification on the Annex A.1

In order to align the detail of the communication indicated in the SCO and the ones used by laboratories during product qualification, one modification has been done on the document GP_Self-Testing_and_Product_Qualification_Processes_V1.3.0 as follows:

“The Product submitted can be activated with several communication protocols (e.g. T=0 and Contactless Type A). This activation may be carried out in various manners e.g.

- by parameter setting
- by using specific bridge between the Product and the Test Tool (e.g. GP SE Abstract Communication Layer)

By doing so and without changing any Product component, the Test Tool and the Product can communicate according to one or the other of these protocols.”
